1,296 individuals are the reason South Side High School exists. We each have our own separate personalities that make us unique and make us winners in our own respect. In short, we are a group of people who are different in many ways, yet we still have the ability to work and succeed together as a team.

Left of Center is right on target and it made an ideal theme for 1986-1987. We are left of center when compared to the other schools in the area and we have every right to be proud of being known as "different."

South Side High School has a rich tradition and we should be proud to know that we have what it takes to be winners, the best at what we do!

This year it's going to be different. Everyone who has ever tried to leave their mark has said this phrase. The staff of this year's Totem wanted to leave their mark by making the best yearbook they could and live up to the some tradition of past books. The first thing the book needed was a theme. The theme had to be a phrase that told a story about South Side. "Left of Center" tells everyone that South Side is different and proud of the uniqueness. The next step was to get pictures that showed the world what we thought the school really was like. When you look at yearbooks, you see people, not buildings. People make South Side great and different.

Lastly, the 1986-87 Totem needed stories. It needed a voice to tell about the lives that the students lived. The book needed a way to tell about the "four-year life stories" that took place.

When these pages are read twenty years from now, the 1986-87 school year will leap to life and the mark we, as a school, left will have been worth it.

Left of Center

Anything! A year book can say anything.

This year we are going to say a lot of "stuff" and with any luck that "stuff" will not look like every other story that you have read in a yearbook before.

"Left of Center" can be anything. It can be sentimental, it can be funny, and it can even be so unusual that it does not seem to mean anything at all. An author writes what is on his or her mind. We all know that here at South Side people think in a lot of different ways and not all of them are as serious or as funny as the others.

Remember, read this yearbook with an open mind, we wrote it with one.

High School days consist of good times, bad times and more good times. Throughout your high school career you grow and learn of feelings and possibilities that you never even realized existed. When over you will look back upon your accomplishments with pride and a sense of knowing that those high school years were some of the best years of your life. You will be able to look back upon that very emotional football game with a smile. It is also possible that you will look back on something that caused you sadness, but with time you have overcome the hurt.

To look back and observe your high school days can be a fragile thing, but it can also be a growing thing.

What Makes Us So Special?

We found a place . . . Left of Center. Left of center is unique very much like our school. Did you know that South Side is the last public walk-in high school in the city? Did you know that South was once the largest one story school in the Nation? Did you know that South Side is the only public school in Fort Wayne that offers the Lau Program, a special program for non-English speaking students? Did you know South is one of the only high schools in the Nation with ramps? Did you know that South has had only three Principals in it's sixty-five years in existence?

Yes, South is unique in all sorts of ways. South Side is an unique place. Where is this place, you ask? . . . Left of Center!

The Tradition Continued in '86

Since the Spring of 1932, South Side students have had the unique experience of participating in Ivy Day. Underclassmen, faculty, and parents have gathered in anticipation of watching this traditional parade.

The parade of Seniors, led by the Queen and her court, marched down Calhoun and Oakdale into the auditorium for The Ivy Day Ceremony. The Ceremony was welcomed by Peter Myers, '86 senior, and by guest speaker Superintendent, Dr. Bill Anthis. Jeff Livensparger, '86 senior, was master of ceremonies, and Melanie Kratzman, '86 senior, presented the ivy.

The planting of the Ivy has come to symbolize the branching out into life. The green ivy is a sign of the life ahead, and the climb to success.

It was a Time to Believe

On Friday May 9, The '86 Junior/Senior Prom was held at The Botanical Conservatory. The Conservatory was a beautiful setting for the Prom's theme, "Time to Believe in Our Dreams." The rooms were decorated for dancing and conversing and the beautiful paths provided a place for the couples to stroll through. The music was fabulous as it played from 9:00 till midnight.

After midnight the couples changed into their dancing clothes and went to Pelz Reception Hall. There, everyone danced till dawn.

The Prom was an evening to remember ... "A Time to Believe in Our Dreams."

Almost Home!

At South Side, the day does not end at 2:35. If you are an Archer, the odds are that you spend a lot of time after school.

After years of people screaming "get involved!", South Side students have taken it to heart. The after-school activities at South range from different sports and journalism to bands, choirs, and speech team. Whatever there is to do you can do it at South after school.

Take a look at all the activity at South and see why getting involved at South has been a tradition. Join the tradition and get involved.

We All Need Someone Special

Have you ever had "one of those days?" Those days when nothing seemed to go right? And just when you thought, "This day is going to be the worst day of my life." A "Special someone" came along and gave you a "pat on the back", a smile, or maybe even something as simple as a wink; and in that short, time all your troubles seemed to fade.

South Side is filled with these people, these "Special Someones." They can be teachers, students and even advisors which make your days in high school so special. Those special days are what make your memories last. So remember these people now and forever, they will always be in your mind and in your heart.

On April 18 and 19, 1986 The South Side Soul Revue opened "Saturday Love" with a traditional march down the aisle and up to the stage. There, "The Crew" performed a fabulously choreographed dance number. That was only the beginning. The show was filled with popular music of '86, all performed by the talented Archers, backed up by The Marshal White Band. The Soul Revue crew displayed their great acting abilities and fashion trends during numbers. As the evening ended the entire cast performed, "That's What Friends are For," bringing tears to one another's eyes and the audience to their feet cheering for a job well done. The 1986 Soul Revue was a show to be remembered for years to come.

South Side Has Variety!

During the spring of The 1985-86 school year, one more memorable night was added to it's existence — The Variety Show. Although there was disappointment in the failure to have a spring musical due to lack of money, the Variety Show as well attended and proved to be greatly enjoyable. It was quite obvious that each performer worked long hours in order to perfect his or her act, and the pride generated through the hard work was well received by the audience.

The purpose of the Variety Show, besides enabling the student body to show their talent, was to create enough money in order to have a spring musical for the 1986-87 year. The show served both of it's purposes well, and the 1986-87 school year did not lack it's spring musical.

Seniors Succeed With "The Man Who Came To Dinner"

It all started innocently enough. The auditions for the senior play went like all the other auditions ever to take place in the auditorium. After a lot of shrewd bargaining, director Janet Higgins, former South Side student, had the cast she wanted and one slight problem.

M-o-n-e-y spelled trouble for the '86 cast and crew, and it created some stressed relations among all those involved. "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was almost transformed into "The Man Who Came to Dinner But Didn't Get Any." But through the ingenious penny pinching and whip cracking of the director, the '86 senior play took off to great heights.

Although there was an attendance problem at times, most of the cast remained dedicated to their art and put together one of the best productions that South has ever seen.

Year after year the seniors of South Side have been thrilling audiences and '86 was no exception.

Creativity abounded in the promotion of the play as cast members dressed their part and "wheeled" through the lunch mods and classes to encourage attendance of what promised to be a special evening.

The play was a great success and ended up making enough money to pull away a profit.

A special thank you goes out to Ms. Janet Higgins whose paycheck warranted the phrase "volunteer work." And also, the senior class would like to thank the crew and stage manager, Debbie Thatcher, who put in many hours to make sure that "The Man Who Came to Dinner" was a smashing success.

Seniors had a "Last Supper"

"Time to Believe in Our Dreams," was the theme for the 1986 Senior Banquet held at Goeglins. This is the special night when seniors gather to celebrate the last four years of working, laughing, and being together.

Sponsored by the senior class officers, the entertainment came from the seniors themselves. Principal Jack Weicker and Assistant Principal Richard Block spoke to the seniors, as did senior class president, Betsy Colvin.

The evening was filled with special moments that will be remembered for years to come.

Quill & Scroll Inducts Members

On Thursday, May 15, five seniors were admitted to the Quill and Scroll Society, a national honor society for outstanding and dedicated journalists. In order to be elected to Quill and Scroll, a senior must be in the top third of his class, have a major staff position, participate in the Times and/or Totem throughout his senior year, and be on the staff for at least two years.

The 1986 members of Quill and Scroll were Mark Clark, Tammy Grieder, Anita Mendez, Kimberly Plasterer, and Chris Wesner.

Seven other awards were presented at the banquet. Jesse Martin, junior, received the Park D. Williams Incentive Award. Craig Chambers won the Times/Totem Award for top junior journalist, and Anita Mendez was awarded the Times/Totem Writing Trophy. Chris Wesner won the photography trophy for the 2nd year. The MVP award was given to Tammy Grieder. Mark Clark and Kim Plasterer were given the Rowena Harvey Award for top journalism students for the 1986 school year.

South Gets an Exchange of Pace!

South Side spirit can be heard in many different languages. Joining us this year were four foreign exchange students; Genoveva Malo from Ecuador, Soren Ringgaard from Denmark, Jori Tamminen from Finland, and Torgny Holmberg from Sweden. All four of the exchange students were very active in clubs and activities here at south.

Genoveva Malo was extensively active with South's offered clubs like; A.F.S., Project Lead, Philo, and Spanish club which she assumed the position of treasurer. Genoveva also was active in sports. She competed on the cross country team where she proved to be successful. Genoveva commented that South was a great place to be.

Soren Ringgaard from Denmark was into body building and was very impressed with South's athletic program. Soren belonged to Rifle Club and A.F.S. He was also into photography and art. Soren said, "I miss home a little bit, but South's a great place to be."

Jori was also in Rifle Club and A.F.S. and was a big fan of soccer; so, Jori joined the soccer club. Besides soccer, he also played hockey for the New Haven Bulldogs. Jori's favorite sport of all time was football and he rooted for the Chicago Bears. Jori liked South because it was different from his old school. "People seem more supportive and friendly here."

Torgny Holmberg from Sweden was a member of Spanish Club, A.F.S., and Rifle Club. Torgny also plays a great game of soccer and has enjoyed being a part of our soccer team. Torgny was very impressed with South's positive attitude for pride and spirit.

It's been shown that South's spirit can be heard in any language. All four of our exchange students definitely have the South Side Pride and Spirit that all Archers have.

South Side's New Additions

With the addition of nine new teachers and one school aide, South Side expanded its all-star line up of educators. In 1987, new teachers reached out to the students to try and learn more about what South had to offer other than a new job. Like the new teachers, the students reached out to the new faculty to test and explore what made them tick, and what ticked them off.

Mr. Gregg Taylor received his bachelor's degree from Taylor University with a major in social studies. With a masters degree from I.P.F.W, Taylor made a priceless contribution to the Chapter One reading program.

Mr. Donald Norton's bachelor's degree in the sciences came from Findlay College. Norton showed exhaustless patients as he taught his physics class along with his other science classes.

Mr. Barry Ehle took his bachelor's degree in the sciences to the science department where he helped fill the science roster. Ehle also took on extra responsibilities by coaching the wrestling team, coaching the football team, and sponsoring the Lettermen's club.

With a four year degree from the U.S Air Force Academy, Mr. David Brumm finished his schooling at I.P.F.W to get his master's. Brumm, a Memorial Park Middle School veteran, also provided valuable help in the sciences.

To help-out in the Work-Study program, Mrs. Mary Armstead brought her bachelor's degrees in social studies and learning disabilities to South.

Mrs. Renee Albright had an interesting first year. Albright, who has degrees in secondary education, social studies and English, found a challenge in the teaching of a psychology class.

A bachelor's degree in social studies from I.P.F.W. made Mr. Ronald Holmes indispensable to South. Holmes did a bit of substituting throughout the year both at South Side and Concordia. (Holmes was a coach for the Cadets basketball team)

Mrs. Marianne Klaffke lived in Germany until she was nineteen years old. After moving to America, she obtained her master's degree in German and a bachelor's degree in the arts and sciences. On May 1st, 1987, Klaffke celebrated her thirtieth year in America by having a "cultural experience" with her students.

Cheryl Knox entered South's staff in the disciplinary field. Knox helped to supervise the "in-school-suspension" room for South.

Dr. Anne Spann has a master's degree in school services and personel, and a bachelor's degree from East Kentucky, and a doctorate degree in philosophy from Miami of Ohio made Spann the library's new supervisor.

The introduction of new staff at South steered our school to a bright future in 1987.

Along with the resurgence of pride and tradition at South in 1987, there was a resurgence of pride and accomplishment in all of the Archer teams. ## ... To State Two Years Straight!

If anyone had any doubts about the 1985 Girls Track State Champions, they were dispelled by the 1986 South Side Track Team. These awesome champions ran, jumped, and shot-putted their way to an undefeated season, winning all eleven of their meets. Among these were the Northrop Invitational, the SAC meet, Sectionals, Regionals, and, of course, State.

Leading this outstanding team were, according to coach Roberta Widmann-Faust, "three of the most talented women athletes to graduate from South," Trudi McCloud, DeDe Nathan, and Cori Kelso. Trudy and DeDe attained All-American status by running the 1600-meter relay at State as freshmen and sophomores. DeDe retained this status by winning the 100-meter hurdles as a senior and the 300-meter hurdles as a junior and senior at the state level.

Commented Coach Widmann-Foust, "What can a coach say about a team that turns in a perfect season? ... It has been a just reward to have had the pleasure and privilege of coaching these young women."

Coach Widmann-Faust is no slouch, either. She has been Indiana Coach of the Year for several years straight and was nominated for National Coach of the Year twice. South Side has a good reason for true pride in its Girls Track team.

The boys' and girls' cross country teams did very well this year. The boys had about 15 runners and the girls had 6 runners.

All of their hard work paid off because both did very well. The boys' team was the best team South has had in the last three years. The girls' team had very talented front runners but still needed some strong back runners.

Both Coaches, Bill Walker for the boys and Kristy Walker for the girls, were pleased with their teams' successes. All the runners improved at almost every meet.

The boys' team placed eighth in sectionals, and the girls also placed well. The girls team was honored by All-Conference runner Holly Young, placing 15th.

South will be looking forward to an even better season next year. All runners from both teams will be returning except Chris Lomont, senior boys' captain. The boys' team otherwise consisted of all freshmen and sophomores.

The girls' team consisted of freshmen, sophomores, and one junior. Jenny Osterman, girls' captain, said, "Next year's team will be very competitive" The boys' and girls' teams will have five returning lettermen each next year.

Running Back To Basics

The reserve team, which finished 2-6, was plagued with offensive problems. The reserve squad lacked a true running back and a starting quarterback until the end of the season but finished with consecutive season-ending victories. The reserve defense was consistent all year and was lead by juniors Elbert Starks, Shane Hollingsworth, Tarek Zawahri, and Pat Owens. However, bright spots for this year were the facts that many young sophomores gained lots of playing time, which will help them step into varsity shoes, and they went out for the year with two straight victories.

The freshman team displayed considerable talent and hope for the future, even though they finished 2-4-1. The team sometimes had trouble pulling together at crucial times but still played well. The record does not indicate that the freshmen were on the wrong end of close games, which could easily have put them in a winning season. The freshmen offense was led by Juan Gorman, who split time on reserve, and the back field tandem of Jason Booner and Paris Jones, who displayed great potential for the future. The defense produced two excellent linemen, Darnell Wright and Rusty Woods, who actually dressed for a varsity game. The freshmen proved they could be formidable opponents and could grow into a dominant team for the upcoming varsity years.

Home Sweet Home

This year's team was South Side's best since 1981. The offense averaged 20 points per game while the defense only allowed 13.

The defense was very consistent. They were led by juniors Keith Nathan and Terry Reese. Other bright spots in the line-up included Wayne White, senior, Todd Kabish, junior, and Adrian Mable, sophomore. However, the defense played as a team sending four players to the All-SAC team. They were Keith Nathan, Terry Reese, Sam Young, and Tim Gaskill.

The offense was led by the combination of Carlton "Air" Mable and Tim Gaskill. Mable put in 975 yards of passing and Gaskill caught nearly half of those passes. The running attack was led by Tony Easley and All-SAC back Shane Younker. 169 points was a testament to the fact that the offense was certainly equal to the defensive unit in contributing to the Archers fine season.

South's regular season mark was 5-3. The Archers won every regular season game at their home stadium proving that there is indeed "no place like home."

Lady Archers Learned!

South Side's Varsity Volleyball team didn't see an outstanding record at the end of its season, but the young ladies who were a part of the team took their efforts to heart.

The team was prosperous at times, but just didn't have a consistent winning combination.

Coach Lori Johnson has coached volleyball at South Side for two years now. She is a young, talented coach who has the potential to coach South Side's volleyball teams to outstanding and victorious seasons in the future. The efforts of Coach Johnson and the team were greatly appreciated here at South. We wish them more success in the seasons to come.

Though this was not one of the better seasons for the reserve volleyball team, they represented South Side well with excellent sportsmanship. The reason for their unsuccessfulness, may have been in the fact that it was a young team with only a few experienced team members. Though these young ladies had to face a disadvantage from the beginning of the season, they still executed themselves as a team to the best of their ability. Another important factor that held the team together was the new coach, Robin Causey. Coach Causey commented that she was proud of the team and their powerful efforts.

Some High-Strung Ladies!

Even though the number of lady Archer netters shrank a considerable amount from the previous year the team's pep was high. Showing a lot of hard work and effort the team ended it's season with a record of 3-9 .

The varsity squad had only lost three of its seven players. The four remaining were '86 senior Betsy Colvin, the team's captain, playing the top spot, '86 senior Julie Dorman at number two singles, and the number one doubles team of '86 seniors Holly Hunter and Gina Nierman. The additions to the varsity squad were junior Whitney Bish at number three singles and juniors Beth Felger and Pam Reuille at the number two doubles spot.

The reserve squad, which learned how to laugh at mistakes while gaining experience, consisted of sophomores Amy Kohler, Melissa Livensparger, and freshman Buffy Newton. J. Webb Horton was the coach who dared to tame the team.

The fairly inexperienced team hoped that the experience garnered from last season would lead to a more successful 1987 season.

Netmen Have Smashing Season

During the 1986-87 school year, it became slightly obvious that last year's boys' tennis team suffered severely from a lack of pressured experience. South's 4-11 record was an obvious testament to this fact.

Despite its limited success, South's netmen showed no small amount of potential with conference victories over Luers, Elmhurst, and Northrop.

To be sure, South won when the singles players were victorious. Leading the team was the number one singles player, junior Matt Elliott. He accumulated a 12-3 record, an All-Area designation, and a trip to the Regional Singles Tournament. At number two singles, Scott Dyer, junior, often contributed the crucial win in Archer victories, despite missing a few matches. Justin Lebamoff, junior, garnered an impressive 9-4 mark at number three singles.

The Doubles squads, although somewhat less successful, also contributed victories on occasion. At number one doubles were senior Steve Mast and junior Jason Stinson, and junior Mike Ryan and Dave Druhot rounded up the lineup at the second doubles slot. Sophomore Marty Byro and freshman Jake Lester also saw varsity action occasionally.

South finished seventh in the SAC standings and fell just short in a 3-2 loss to North Side in the first round of Sectionals.

This year's girls varsity basketball team faced an uphill season this year with a team that had little experience. The only returning letter winner for the lady cagers was senior Sheila Weir. This young team, though fighting valiantly to the end, finished the season with a 4-11 record.

After finishing his second year of coaching, Coach Walker commented, "The team learned a lot this year, and I'm looking forward to a much brighter season next year." What season couldn't be better after facing Northrop, state champs and winner of over 50 games, two times in a row?

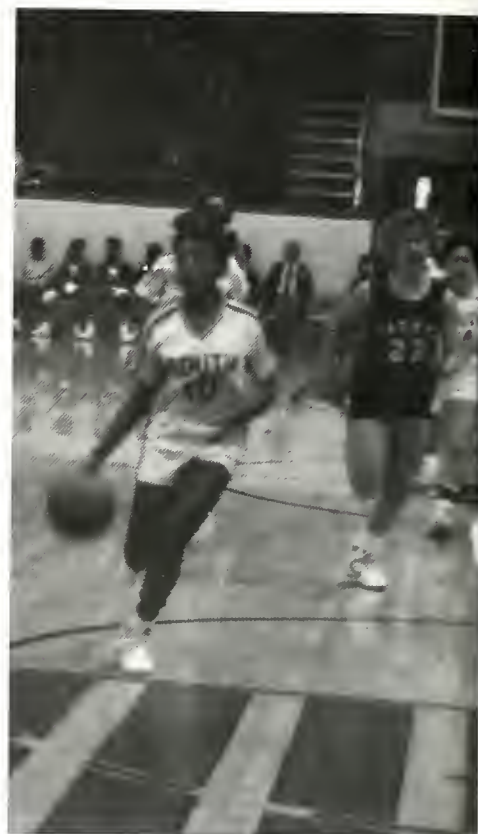

South will only be losing two seniors this year in Kelly Heingartner and Sheila Weir. This fact means that little experience is being lost and that those who will be playing next year had some time to play this year as well. Another bright spot would have to be the freshman team which had a 12-2 record and attained the title of city champs.

All in all, the team showed good sportsmanship and determination. Hopefully, the team will be able to achieve a winning season next year by benefitting from the experience gained this year.

The freshman and reserve girl's basketball teams had very diverse seasons this year. The freshman cagers had an extremely exciting and successful season. Not only was their record stellar at 12-2, they capped off their season with the S.A.C title in hand.

Under the guidance of Coach Johnson, the reserves had a few problems. Although they didn't have the record of the freshman squad, they had their reasons. The starters at the beginning of the season were pulled from the lineup to fill vacancies in the varsity squad. Because of this, the reserves had their problems getting together as a team.

The future is a whole new story. The number one freshman team in the city will be moving up next year, and some players who would normally play reserve got some valuable varsity experience. These two facts combined brighten the future of girls basketball for South Side.

Even though the 1986-87 South Side basketball team was rather young and inexperienced, they turned out to be a tough team to beat. The team had only three returning lettermen, and the top three scorers from last year's team were gone due to graduation. Although last year's seniors didn't lead the team to the top of the S.A.C., the loss of their experience seemed to doom this year's team. The three returning lettermen were Jesse White, Mike Hollingsworth, and Roger Woods. The addition of junior O.J. Bonner and sophomore Adrian Mable into the starting line-up and the help of juniors Ziggy Arrington and James Woods, sophomore Clifford Cleveland and senior Rod Ahlersmeyer gave this year's squad a much better season.

The cagers started the season out by sweeping the Huntington Tip-Off Classic with two impressive wins over Huntington North and Concordia. Victories over two state-ranked teams, Harding and Anderson Highland, Brought much respect and recognition to the Archers. Added recognition came when junior O.J. Bonner and Jesse White were named Players-Of-The-Week by the News Sentinel and Coach Flynn was named twice as the Coach-Of-The-Week.

A strong defense plus an even stronger inside game proved to be the strengths of this team. Opposing teams had several difficulties when playing the Archers on their home floor behind the crazy fans of Section "K". Under the inspired guidance of Coach Flynn, The Archer basketball team brought back memories of the good old days of Archer basketball. With seven returning varsity players and the addition of players from the strong 1986-87 reserve team, the good old days are here to stay.

The 1986-87 Freshman boy's basketball team did not have a stellar season as their 2-11 record shows. However, the team, coached by Coach Parrish, did have a few highlights of its own. The team finished third in the S.A.C. holiday tournament. Coach Parrish said, "we beat a very tough New Haven team in the consolation game. Some of the team's key players were Glenn Wattlely, Shannon Carry, and Juan Gorman who will no doubt get some playing time on next year's reserve squad.

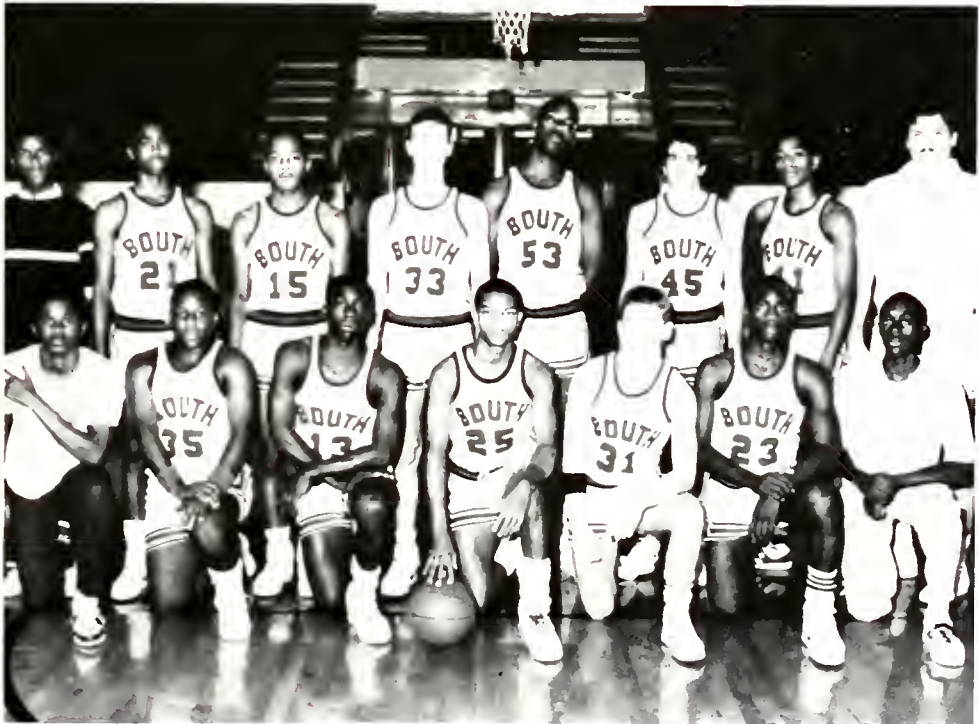

The reserve boys basketball team was extremely successful this year. Coach Jeff Lee summed it up by sying it was a "fine season". Some of the high points were winning the reserve tourney and knocking off an undefeated North Side. The leaders of the team were Carleton Mable and Jimmie Kendrick. "Being juniors, they gave us the leadership we needed on the court," said Coach Lee. Other contributors to the cause were Lamar Smith and Tom Gaskill, both sophomores. The future of South Side basketball is in good hands with this team.

With only three seniors and no all-conference players returning, South's 1986 baseball squad seemed doomed for the ultimate cliché, the "rebuilding season."

Yet, behind spirited pitching and defense, the Archers jumped to an 11-4 record early in the season, which included a stunning upset against state contender Snider. Success was fleeting, however, and South dropped most of their remaining games for a season mark of 14-16. South received some consolation; though, when they ousted SAC champ Dwenger from sectional play before losing to Snider.

The 1986 South Side golf team, although thought by many to have a chance at the SAC title, suffered due to the loss of key players. The team was composed of five Pat Shuler, junior, at number one spot, Jon Schlegel, senior, at number two, John Stanutz, senior, at number three, Kurt Hargens, junior, at number four and alternating members at the fifth spot. The Archer linksters were coached by Richard Melton.

The overall record for the Archer golf team was a rather disappointing 4-12. The team participated in two 18-hole tournaments. They finished twelfth in the Wawasee Invitational and eighth in the SAC meet which the Archers hosted. At the sectional, played at Brookwood Golf Course, the golf team finished fifteenth.

The linksters returned two lettermen for the 1987 school year and hoped for more success.

The 1986-87 Gymnastics team, although short on numbers, was high on spirit. The problem of the lack of people again plagued this year's team. When compared to the other teams in this area, South's team falls far short in the area of numbers. Due to this lack of competitors, the Archer Gymnastics team had difficulty in beating the much larger teams they faced. They did manage to beat Harding on January 28 even with their small numbers.

One very bright spot came in the form of freshman Sarah DesJardins, who competed all-around. Other team members included Alfreda Ottley, Mary Shrock, Tiffany Howell and Angie Ottley. Angie Ottley is the only graduation loss that will be suffered this year. Although her floor exercises will be missed in the score and her presence missed by her teammates, next year's squad will be returning with more experience and hopefully more numbers than this year.

Wrestling at South Side has not been in the spotlight, but it has been on the upswing. Wrestling has finally come out of the closet and has had increased support in the past few years. The increased number of fans attending the meets and the newly formed "Wrestlerettes" both had a positive affect on the team.

Although this year's team never had a win in total points, the season was still successful. Due to the lack of wrestlers in three and sometimes four weight classes, South would often lose matches that they should have won. In a meet with Snider, South won six out of the nine matches wrestled but forfeited four classes resulting in a loss. This was the way the entire season went.

South's individual achievements were, by far, the most successful part of the season. Seniors Eric Blanton and Sam Young both took first places at the sectional tournament. When they advanced to the regional competition, Blanton took third place and Young came away with a second place and the title of fastest pin at 17 seconds. The next step was the semi-state competition. Neither Blanton nor Young made it out of semi-state, but they put in the kind of effort that it will take to make South Side an up and coming wrestling power.

The Spare Time Sportsmen

Once again this year the South Side intramural program proved to be a favorite activity for many of the students here at South Side. It allows students, who aren't participating in a varsity sport at that time, to compete against one another in a structured atmosphere. Some of the fondest memories of high school can be obtained from participating in intramurals.

The highlight of the year was the intramural basketball tournament. Nine teams competed in a double elimination tournament to earn a birth in the championship game. With a large crowd on hand the "Bodybuilders" and the "Force" battled it out for the title. The game was tied at 42 at the end of regulation, and the "Bodybuilders" gained control in overtime to win the game 53-48. Mr. Wynn and Coach Hester put in a lot of extra time serving as referees for the games. Even though they took some ribbing from the players and fans for some questionable calls, Coach Hester said, "The bottom line was that it was a good time."

The intramural program also stimulated interest among the community. A couple of photographs of the basketball tournament appeared in the News Sentinel's "Neighbors" insert. Senior Tim Gaskill summed up intramurals when he said, "It's a time to have fun, get a little exercise, and be with friends, too."

Alive and Kicking

The 1986-87 school year saw many changes in the South Side soccer club. The year began with Mr. Francis Mustapha as the faculty sponsor but in mid-January Mr. David Brumm took over the main duties of the club although Mr. Mustapha remained available. In September, the club elected juniors Mike Ryan president, Jason Stinson vice-president, Tom Eix secretary and Craig Cantello treasurer.

Because of a new rule of the Tahcum-wah League, the indoor soccer team could only consist of eighteen players. This severely limited the amount of players who could play.

Also this year the soccer club decided on an entry fee. The club made this decision because the members had become absolutely sick of fundraising. The team also got new uniforms for the outdoor season.

Although the number of wins was not as high as in past years, Mr. Hollingsworth, returning to the team for his second year, said, "... the team had the potential to beat any team in the city."

They've got "Pride"

It was a bright and sunny day, perfect for the Three Rivers Festival Parade. The scene was the same as in years before, or was it? In addition to the customary trombones and trumpets and such of the Marching Green Machine and the flags of the color guard, there were twenty-eight pairs of green and silver pompons bouncing up and down in perfect rhythm with the music. Spectators at the parade had witnessed the arrival of the brand-new Archer Pride Corps, a pompon and dance group organized by Mrs. DiBella and Mrs. Brown.

After months of diligently pursuing the administration, Mrs. Brown finally got permission to start searching for interested young ladies. The first four girls to respond later became the captains of the squad. They were Kelly Murphy, Kris Buck, Nicole Story, and Marry Bailey.

Eventually, out of forty women, a very talented twenty-eight were selected to be in the all-new Pride Corps. Nine of the ladies attended Universal Dance Camp at Indiana University, where they learned the first couple of dances to get the corps underway, including the infamous Pee-Wee dance. Throughout the course of the year, the group tallied up an impressive amount of work. In addition to practicing constantly, they sold candy and colored trash bags, held a Pee-Wee's birthday dance, and even took third prize in the hall decorating contest. With the proceeds from these activities, they earned money with which to purchase uniforms. All the work paid off. Besides the Three Rivers Parade, the Pride Corps performed at orientation, pep sessions, and at football and basketball games. When asked if all the work was worth it, one member, Rhonda Smith, said, "Yes, I think so. The dances are fun and I made a lot of friends." The South Side Archer Pride Corps is for real and here to stay.

This year when you thought of cheerleading, the odds were pretty good that you thought about the addition of the male cheerleaders to the South Side roster. These males mark not a single important growth, but rather the effort of the cheerleaders to improve their overall performance throughout the years.

Over the last two years the varsity cheerleaders have been trying to improve their ability to fire-up the crowd. They have also undergone many changes. One of the major changes has been the shift in sponsors since last year. This year South Side was introduced to male cheerleaders, a great Halloween dance, an exciting spirit week, and, more than ever, increased school spirit. Working on increasing spirit was the most difficult thing to manage. During the summer the cheerleaders made it a daily practice of being at school by 6:00a.m. to learn how to do cheers, mounts, and how to be friends. Aside from early morning workouts, the female cheerleaders attended a week long camp at Ball State University. Grueling exercise in the twilight tested each person's true ability to have what it takes to be a cheerleader.

The varsity squad had a total of eighteen people in it this year making it the largest cheerleading squad ever in South's history. With numbers came respect which was one of the most noticeable changes in this year's cheerleaders. During the course of the year athletic directors, other cheerleaders, and rival fans pointed out that South Side was definitely helping out it's public image with the increased effort that had been put into cheering.

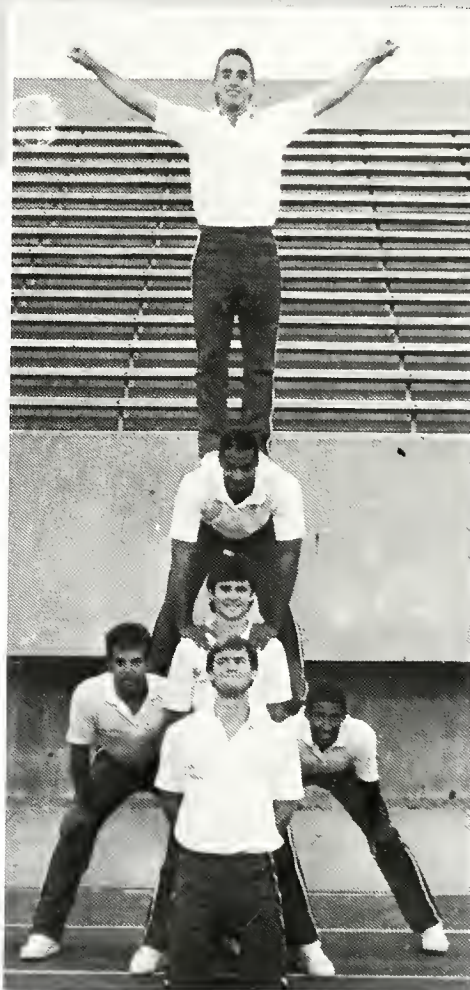

All of the facts about the year can be written down easily and can look impressive on paper, but without the memories of what was accomplished and the fun that was had, this article means little to those who ever attended a game or yelled a cheer at the top of their voice. Cheerleading's purpose is to make everything a little bit more exciting and fun, which is what the cheerleaders did.

They've Got Spirit in Reserve

The 1986-87 Reserve and Freshman cheerleaders both had successful years. The Reserve squad consisted of Erin Kohne; captain, Elenor Jones, Dawn Buggs, Amy Olsen, Lori Byers, Debbie Cook, and Carrie Lumppp. They started out their year by attending a cheerleading camp at Huntington College where they learned many new cheers and chants. They received recognition for their efforts. When they returned from camp, they went straight to work practicing for the upcoming football season.

However, cheering isn't the only job they had. They also had to sell Suckers, sell M & M's, and have a bake sale in order to raise funds for some new sweaters.

In addition to the football games they cheered for, they also cheered for the reserve basketball team and split up their squad for the varsity girl's basketball games. All in all, the reserve cheerleaders had fun along with the hard work that goes into cheerleading.

The freshman squad consisted of six girls including Mary Felger, Joyce Merriman, Laurie Fisher, Tricia Reichard, Angie Beck, and Mary Porter. After attending a cheerleading camp at Ball State over the summer, the freshman cheering team came back and cheered for the freshman football on Monday nights.

As their fall season came to a close, their work didn't. They cheered for the freshman basketball team and also shared the duties of cheering for the varsity girl's basketball team. Needless to say it was a busy first year for the freshman cheerleaders.

Academically

Since South Side began 65 years ago, the academic program has grown and changed to meet the needs of students living in an ever-changing society.

When South Side first opened in 1921, the curriculum carried classes such as, home nursing and child care, citizenship, Occupation, and Civics. Since then, the curriculum of South Side has grown to include extensive classes concerning calculus, chemistry, psychology, body building, and most recent of all, computer courses.

The times have changed!

Chapter I Reading

Gregg Taylor, a 1975 graduate of South Side and a 1979 graduate of Taylor University, has developed South Side's first reading program. The Chapter I Reading Program was offered to ninth grade students who had shown a need to improve their reading comprehension skills based on their scores from the California Achievement Test which was taken last spring. The program began on October 1 and ran through December 17, and was operated on a daily basis. In this course, students spent much of the class time developing skills in comprehension. Other activities included library visits, creative writing, newspapers in the classrooms, book reports, computer usage, video programs dealing with language development, plus the latest materials on the market as recommended by the top reading specialists in Indiana. The course culminated by reading the novel, "Where the Red Fern Grows."

Mr. Taylor stays involved with other types of reading programs at IPFW and other schools. Mr. Taylor has made a major difference in students attitudes toward reading.

They Took "Olde" Out of English

The group in the English department is quite large and diverse. From speech teachers to journalism teachers, the English department held them all.

During the 1986-1987 school year there were some new assignments from the English department. The sophomores and juniors had to read books over the summer and the seniors were given a list of books that they had to read within a month.

English classes in 1987 had progressed well. Mr. Laslie, journalism teacher, said that he had quite a lot of interest shown in journalism this year. "I'm getting a lot more cooperation this year too. It can't compare to past years," he added. Interestingly though, he said that his English students had been somewhat more motivated. Other teachers shared this opinion. According to Mrs. Wygant, "My honors group this year seems to want to debate everything. It reminds me of my first honors class."

Not Just Pilgrims

A history class ponders seriously over the great wordly issues concerning America today./photo by Brateman

Contrary to popular belief, Social Studies is not simply the study of pilgrims, but a diverse and very much alive exploration of culture. Junior Matt Elliott summed up the department well when asked, "South Side's Social Studies department?" "I feel it provides the student with the perfect bridge between past, present, and future, all the while cultivating the independent analysis of mankind's fundamental, historical weaknesses by each individual. I guess it's okay."

It was in this pursuit that South Side offered a wide curriculum in this area. The latter included, as background upon which students could base their future, World and United States History. In these courses, special effort was made to correlate the study of history to the department of philosophy, religion, and the fine arts.

The more modern courses were also prevalent on Archers' schedules. Leading the way among these was Government, a required senior course that focuses on how the people can affect the ruling bodies of our time on all levels. Psychology, the study of behavior, and Sociology, the study of the social and cultural problems facing our society, were other choices. Economics, an in depth study of economic institutions and principles, was yet another scholastic opportunity for the lucky students of South Side.

The strong Social Studies department here was not only a boon to the entire academic program, but most importantly, a chance for every student to grow, learn, and become better prepared for the future through reflections on the past and precepts of today's society.

The International Language

Foreign Language was a vital part of many students' curriculum. With an ever increasing number of colleges requiring at least two years of foreign language, the already large foreign language classes were swelling. Knowing or being familiar with a foreign language or two is becoming almost a necessity now that many immigrants to our country chose to retain their native tongue, or must speak it until they learn english.

There were four foreign language classes to chose from at South Side they were French, Latin, Spanish, and German. Each of these offers at least a four year program, with a fifth year possible in French and Spanish.

The foreign language department was headed by Miss Lois Holtmeyer.

Along with Miss Holtmeyer there were three other foreign language teachers; Mrs. Dorothy Wynn, Mrs. Vivian Johnson and Mrs. Marianne Klafke. Mrs. Klafke teaches German, her native language. She came here to take over for the departed Mrs. Pam Houk.

Fifth year French student Kathy Hostetter had this to say of the value of having a second language, "For me, French was an essential part of my curriculum because I plan to major in it in college. I also have a better understanding of a totally different culture."

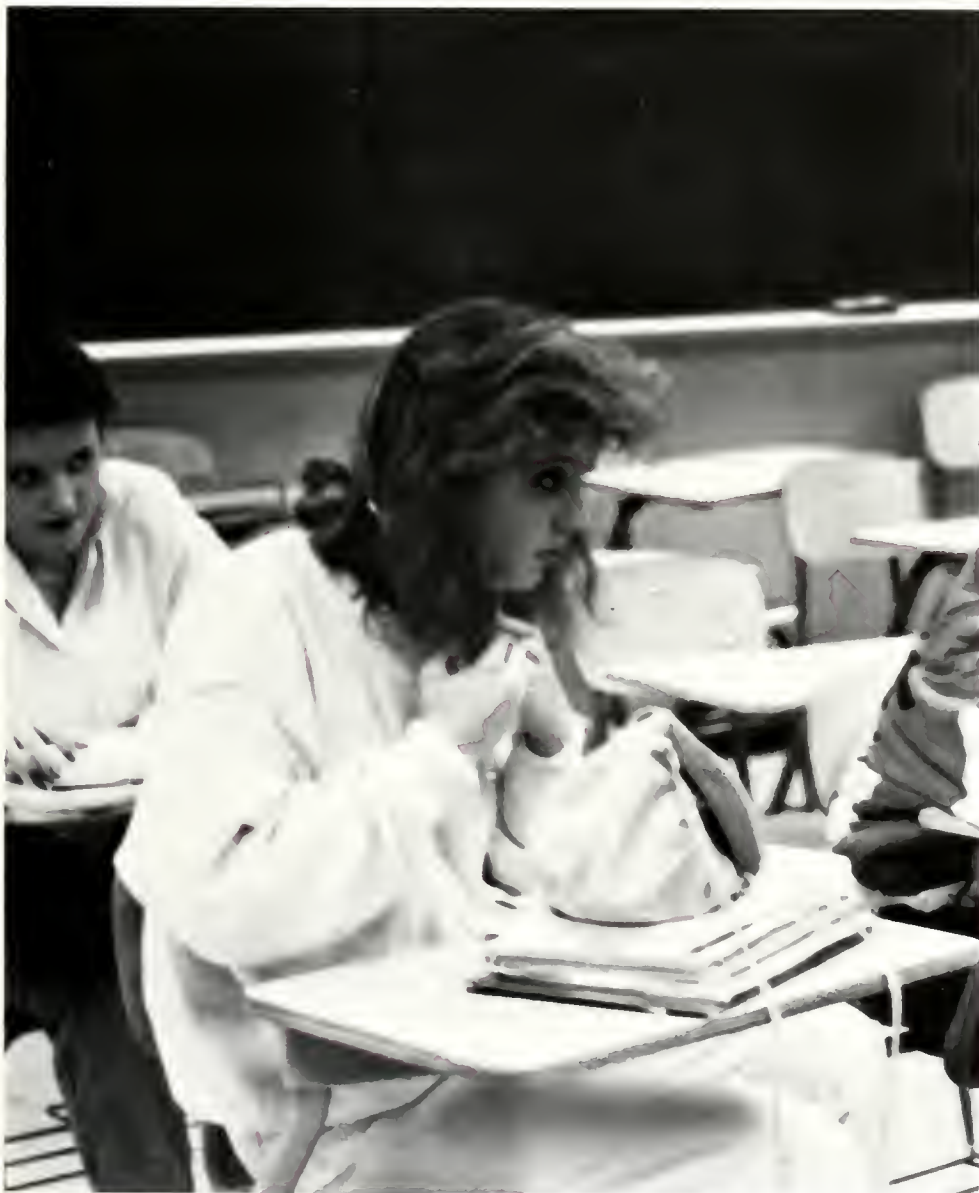

Taking a foreign language was a great experience for many. Students were exposed to a new culture, ideals, places, and fashion.

Math = Experience<sup>2</sup>

The mathematics department at South Side has always been and will continue to be special as the years go by. Many of the teachers have taught at South for so long that the department has a total of 150 years of experience. This number proves that the teachers must be satisfied with the school and the students.

The TOTEM recently spoke with Mr. Richard Sage, the math department head. The TOTEM asked him if there were any changes in the 1986-87 school year. He stated that we have a new teacher, Mr. Brumm, teaching our new course, informal algebra. Informal algebra is an experimental class that helped students that had difficulty with their algebra skills. Even though the course is experimental, its first year was a productive one that was taken advantage of by many students.

Even though computers may still seem to be distant in many peoples minds, South has a strong program for those in computer math. This program gives students the opportunity to program and work with computers.

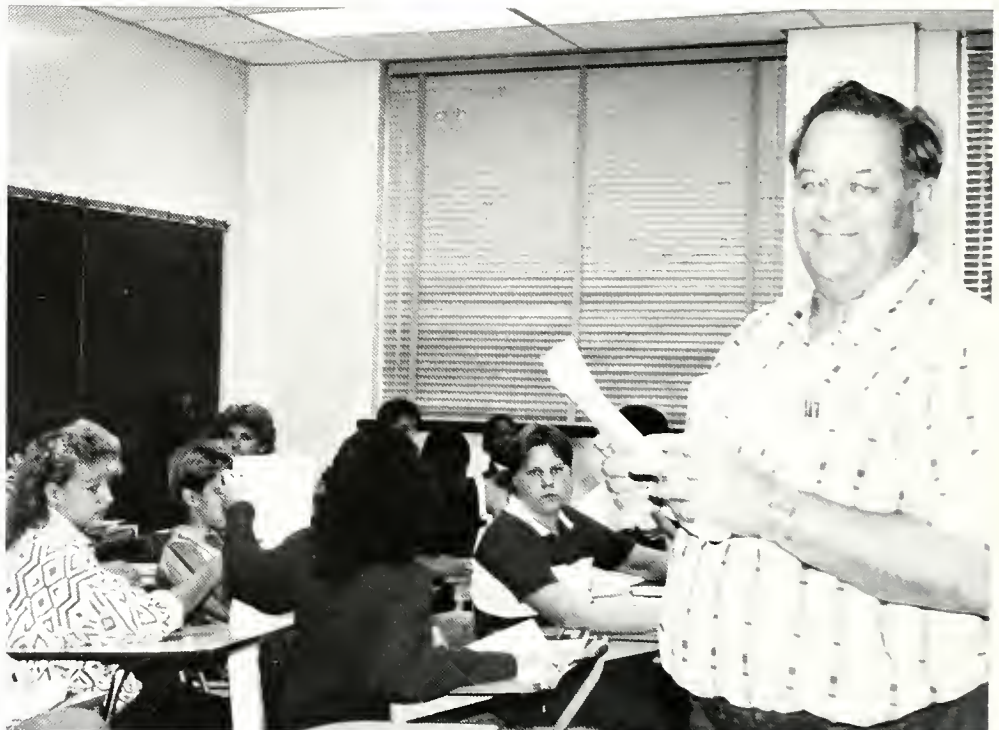

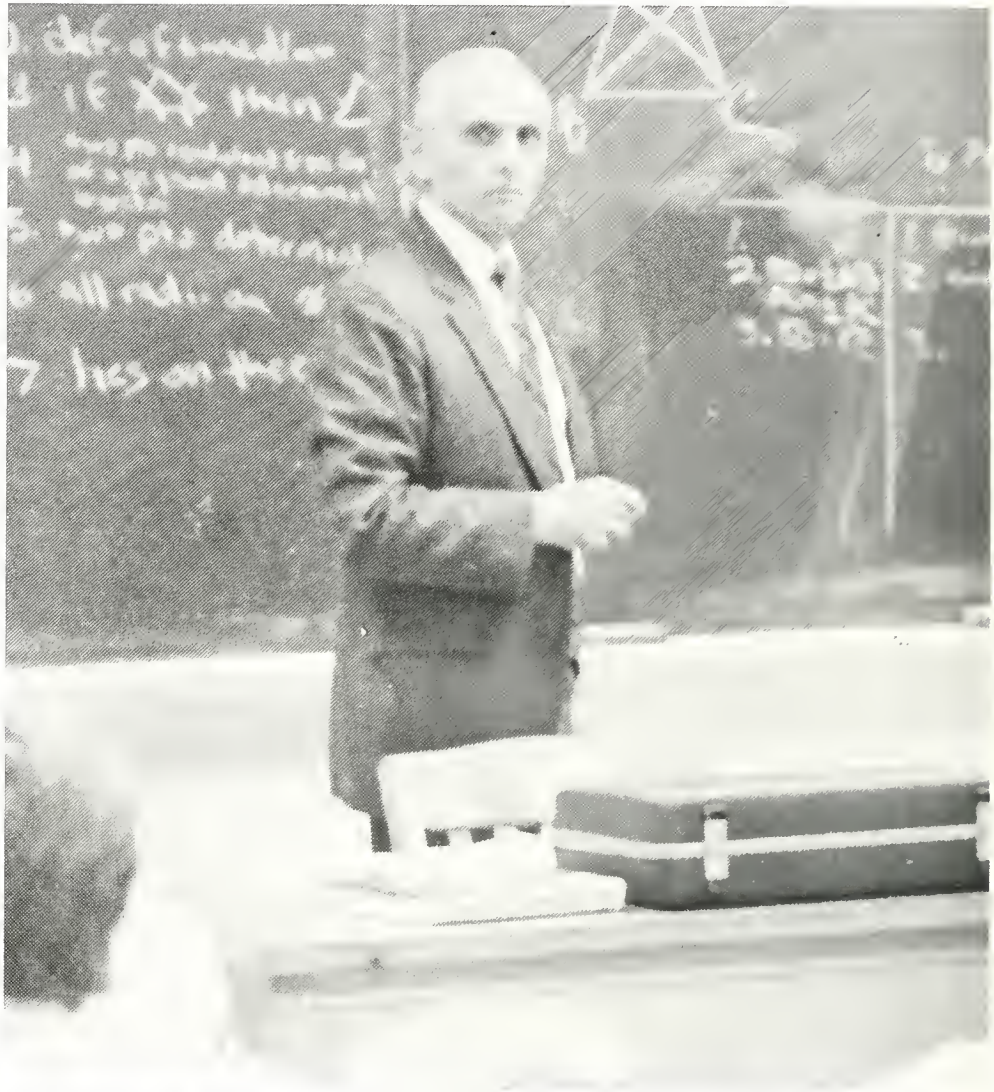

Beyond computers, South is continually offering students the chance to learn at what ever pace is best for them. The department understands the fact that numbers are a foreign language to a lot of us. To help with this problem, South has a wide range of classes with all levels of difficulty.

The math department at South is indeed excellent and prepared students for college and future career plans.

Out with the Old, in with the New

This year the science department, headed by Mr. Davis, added some new faces to its staff and switched around some of the veterans. In the area of biology and honors biology, Mr. Ehle relieved Mr. Mustapha of some of his duties while Mr. Mustapha replaced the retired Mr. Weber in advanced biology. Mr. Norton joined the staff to teach physics and physical science while Mr. Brumm, who taught mostly math, doubled in the area of physical science.

Science, being a must for most students, remained one of the largest and most developed departments at South Side. It was truly a pleasure to see a leading department keep its high standards of teaching.

"Get the ball!" is a common command heard often if one is a freshman or sophomore taking physical education. Here at South Side, physical education is a required to graduate. Mrs. Widmann-Foust thinks four years should be the requirement, or at least a good idea, because one can not really experience all that physical education has to offer in just two semesters. I'm quite sure a few South Side students are baffled and are questioning, "What DOES physical education have to offer?!" Physical education, gym, offers one a chance to participate in sports as a part of a team such as what seems to be the fellas' favorites — flag football, basketball, and warball or some of the girls' favorites — volleyball, tennis, and softball. Gym allows one to become fit and gives one the ability to realize one's own talents. Gym is also social. Learning the sportsmanship taught in games can benefit one later on in life. To become even more conditioned, South Side offers a body building class. Some use this class to train for a specific sport while others use it just to tone their bodies.

Widmann-Foust commented, "Students need to be physically fit to lead a healthy life. You may have a sound mind, but it does you no good unless you have a sound body."

Media Center/A.V

More Than Books

The Media Center has undergone many exciting changes. As many may know, Mrs. Crum is no longer with the Media Center, instead Mrs. Kerbal has taken over as Department Head of the Media Center. Dr. Spann is the new Media Center teacher. One of the many changes that affect students directly is the liberal due dates of all magazines and SIRS. The South Side Media center is one of the two high schools in Fort Wayne who even allow magazines to be checked out. Dr. Spann feels that the students are more apt to check out materials if they have more time to read them.

Many people do not realize how much the Media Center has to offer. Computers and programs are readily available to students during their free time. The VAX terminal is available to all students taking computer science.

Year around, the Media Center is constantly finding ways to involve aspiring students.

South Stirs Attention

Some people believe that Home Economics is just classes about cooking and sewing, but there is much more to learn.

Students can take four full years of clothing, foods, and other interesting classes of home economics at South Side.

Home economics was taught mostly to freshmen. This class introduced students to all areas of home economics throughout the year. This included basic sewing and cooking skills, nutrition, grooming, personal and family development, management and living skills.

One-third of the upper classmen decided to take one of the more popular home economic classes called Human Development. In this class students were taught how to deal with problems many people will face at sometime in their lives such as alcoholism, birth defects, death, divorce, rape, suicides, pregnancy and child rearing.

There is so much more to learn in a home economics class than the average stereotyping student is willing to realize.

Archers Build a Future

Industrial Arts was a subject area aimed at providing students with a broad based knowledge of certain practical skills. Throughout the 1986-87 school year, industrial arts were divided into three categories at South Side, including metals, woods, and graphic arts. Mr. Charles Kuntz, head of the department, and Mr. James Tarr strove to overcome several fallacies surrounding the department. At the same time they accomplished many more specific goals.

The most prominent misconception in the building was that industrial arts was a purely masculine field of study. This was not true, however, because any interested girls were encouraged to participate and many were successful. Another misconception was that no one took an industrial arts class except those following the vocational curriculum. Many students were encouraged to consider the available classes and enroll, if interested.

The mentioned objectives included the following: to develop proper and safe conduct in shop, to teach maintenance and repair of equipment, to improve students' ability to follow direction, and to give the student a working knowledge of basic tools and equipment. The latter when coupled with the extensive hands-on experience gained from projects completed over the year, provided a sound base on which students could build their future.

The Industrial Arts program at South Side was an excellent preparatory tool for young students because it gave them background essential to survival in the work force and infinite real life situations.

Business is Pleasure!

"Let's get down to business" is a popular phrase heard in most classes. To the people in the business department, this means literally getting down to business.

Mr. Leon Dolby is the chairperson of the business department. He teaches keyboarding and advanced typing. This year started out with the loss of business communications, a class which Dolby taught. This was a very important class for anyone entering the business world because of its study of proper English, business letters, and computer application.

Moving on, what were the other business teachers up to? Mr. Ronald Miller taught business law, consumer education, and keyboarding. Next door was Mr. Ned Yingst. He taught accounting I and II and record keeping. Students always carried more than enough pencils and rulers. These were always on the menu in Mr. Yingst's class.

Venturing on, Mrs. Patricia Irving taught shorthand and basic office services. Down the way, Mr. Kenneth Hurlinger taught marketing education, business math, and computer application.

Mr. Dolby, who was inducted into the Quarter-Century Club this year, remarked that in his department, "We are training to meet the needs of business. One of the major problems is the restriction on electives people can take. This was pointed out by a recent study that showed only 6,000 high school students were taking business subjects in Indiana in 1987; however, 25,000 students paid to have business subjects after high school. Students could save money and time if they could take some of these classes before graduation."

Students were getting a jump on the future through the business department.

South Side Draws Attention

Anti-war protest songs, tales of rebellious adolescence, and psychologically bizarre discussions are not exactly what one would expect from one's average art class. Then again, the classes taught by Mr. Frank Roberts and Mr. Albert Jacquay are not exactly what one would classify as "average."

"Their styles are unique. Often they couple humor and zaniness with encouragement and instruction to get students motivated. I've never really had any teachers like them," said Donald Manco, second-year art student.

Art isn't always fun and games; however, as many students have also found, art is definitely not another "blow-off" course. Students enrolled need dedication and devotion to survive in art class. Mr. Roberts and Mr.

Jacquay are quick to encourage this kind of involvement.

"My teaching encompasses all phases of art education, art history, art critiques, homework drawings, and class projects, with the main emphasis on creativity and experimentation. My goal is to allow each student to see and feel art in a new way and give to them as many hands-on experiences with as many mediums as possible," said Mr. Jacquay, who has been teaching at South Side for eight years.

Of this year's incoming students, Mr. Roberts commented, "We've got some really good up-and-coming art students. It's encouraging to see so many students involved in art . . . This year's art exhibit should be the best in South Side history!"

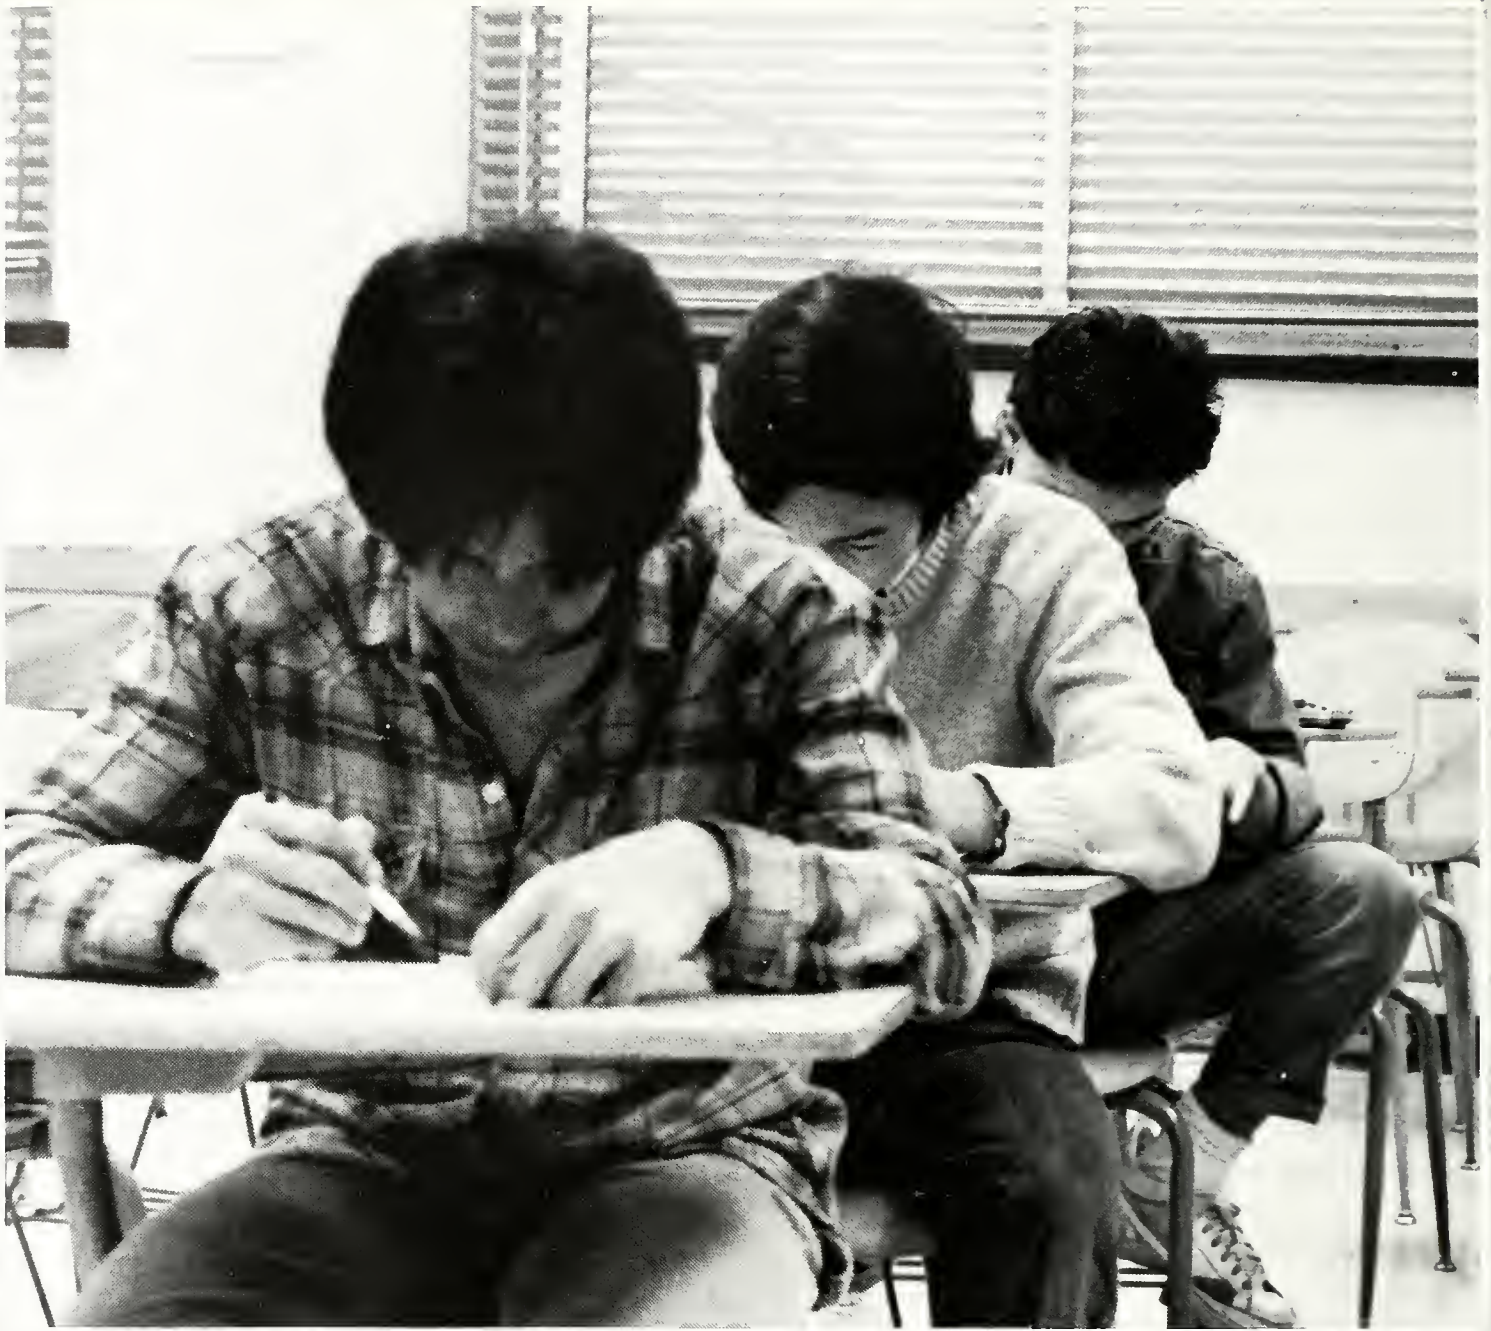

Jennifer Kimble, first year art student, had this to say about Mr. Roberts, "When I succeed he makes me feel proud of what I've done, and when I don't do well, he makes sure I know what I've done wrong and helps me to do better."

Many students in art have also benefited from Mr. Roberts' and Mr. Jacquay's past experiences. It is not likely that students will soon forget the impact left on their lives by Mr. Jacquay and Mr. Roberts.

These teachers have entertained both their students and the rest of South Side by lifting the mundane tedium and helping us to see a more creative and enjoyable side of life.

A New Beginning

South Side had the distinct privilege of being the home high school for the LAU program. LAU is a study course for non-English speaking students. The class focused primarily on familiarizing the students with the language and social customs of the United States. There were approximately 35 students participating in LAU this year with the majority being native to the Orient. The class proudly graduates five to six students per year, this year being its seventh. According to Mrs. Perez, the head of the program, the students were quite eager to learn. After mastering a bit of the English language, the students were introduced to regular classes. They began with the classes that required a minimal amount of reading or writing, such as gym, where they could mix with other kids and adjust to the new environment. South Side is pleased to have this outstanding and important program as a part of the school. Undoubtedly, it will go on to become another one of South Side's academic traditions.

Students Learn Tricks of the Trade

"I felt that the Regional Vocational School was the most updated vocational school of any in the state," said Mrs. Sandra Zalas, South Side RVS director.

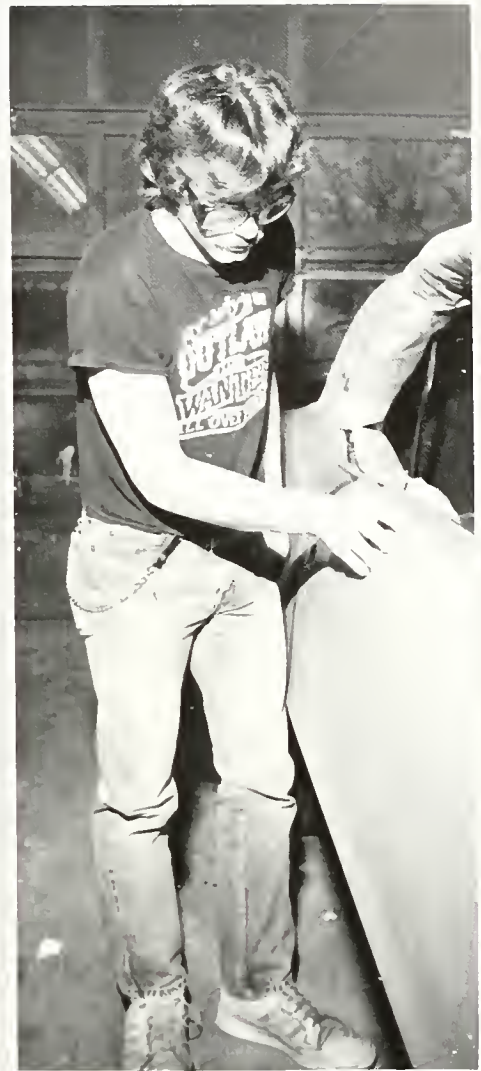

Approximately 943 students attended RVS this year from the fourteen schools that participated in the program. Some of the courses they took were business occupations, automotive, cosmetology, construction trades, food services, industrial technology, childhood education, and more.

This year brought about some changes at the Regional Vocational School. A restaurant was opened to the adult public. It was run by second year foods students. This gave those students experience in their area of training. Also, this year was the second year the student bookstore was open to the public. An important program was also offered this year. Time out of the regular RVS course could be taken to earn a credit in math or English needed by the seniors to complete graduation requirements.

RVS has many things to offer for everyone, and its reputation of excellence has spread throughout the community.

Speak for Yourself

"There will only be one of you for all time. Fearlessly be yourself."

The expression or interchange of thoughts in spoken words was probably the most important skill ever taught at South Side. South Side was the only school in Fort Wayne to recognize beginning speech as a required course. This course was taught to all sophomores by Mr. Robert Kelly and Mrs. Sue Wygant.

During the course of the nine week speech class, students were required to give eight speeches ranging from a speech of introduction to a research information speech.

In summing up the purpose of a speech course, Mr. Kelly said, "I hoped that at the end of the nine weeks, students have a broader perspective regarding the practical as well as the personal applications of verbal expression".

The act or process of being oriented was the other nine week course recognized as a requirement at South Side. This course was taught to all sophomores by Mr. Poorman and Mr. Jaquay.

There were four main focal points of the class. The most important point was the opportunity to discuss teenage problems. Students learned to emphasize the positive aspects of their lives. Students were encouraged to have confidence in themselves and encouraged to help others.

No one can say that South Side has not found some moral values after taking nine weeks in either class.

Special Caring

Each of the FWCS at the high school level had a Special Education Department, but South Side's was unique in the level of caring it provided its students. The young students involved had handicaps ranging from speech impediments to specific learning disabilities.

The purpose of the program was to provide for the individual needs of the students and to help them become more proficient in basic life skills. These goals were achieved through special classes and resource assistance where it was appropriate.

The Special Education Department helped its pupils attain their diplomas, a goal that might be otherwise unattainable. Our fine staff in this area also prepared the students for the future by involving them in the R.V.S. Upon recommendation by an administrator, any student can be placed in an appropriate program during their junior or senior year. The Special Education Department at South Side enriched the people's lives it touched and gave them hope for a more complete and enjoyable future.

Orchestra Small but Good

Though only having nine members, the South Side orchestra enjoyed yet another successful year. This talented group, which included eight violinists and a cellist, was different from orchestras in the past because they combined with the band for concerts to form a string and wind ensemble.

ble. Mr. David Streeter, the orchestra conductor, said, "I think that the addition of wind instruments with the strings will improve the program tremendously." The orchestra played at both the winter and spring concerts and once again did a fine job.

Singing Tradition

Concert choir sings the tradition of South Side. Concert choir was originally the first choir at South Side and has proved to be everyone's favorite. This choir consisted of six boys and twenty-one girls, and was always a pleasure to listen to. Their songs ranged from medleys to holiday favorites. The choir practiced an average of one hour a day for concerts and special recitals at the Embassy Theatre.

Lots of hard work and fun times marked the year of rehearsals and performances by the choir. Concert choir was known to be one of the best ways to make friends and experience the joy of singing.

Archers Live in Harmony

Year round, the concert band provided entertainment in many ways that went far beyond the classical music scene.

The Marching Green Machine, the pep band and the jazz band were all comprised of the men and women that made the 1986 concert band such a success.

Not only was there a continuous effort to entertain, there was also a deep sense of commitment to their director. David Streeter was the heart of one of the greatest beats ever to be heard at South Side. His efforts led the Archer musicians to fine showings throughout his career at South.

As a part of the finer things at South Side, the concert band gave South a song to sing to.

Psychodelic Sounds

The sound always grabs the attention! Many walked by the room all of the time and sometimes wished that they knew how to create the same feeling they felt. They of course were walking by the band room after school. They heard the jazz band.

South Side's jazz band has always upheld the high standards expected by Mr. Streeter and the rest of the school. This year was no different. The jazz band spent the year doing what they do best; playing their music. The time spent rehearsing not only was for enjoyment but also was a means for preparing for the contests in which the band competed. Unlike many bands at contests, the South Side jazz band actually played jazz music as opposed to the rock beat currently used by other bands. Unfortunately, by playing music that wasn't popular, the jazz band was assured that they probably wouldn't place very high in the rankings at contests. The thing that couldn't be taken away from the musicians, though, was the knowledge that they were making sure that jazz still had a place in the halls of South.

Believe It or Not: FUN!!!

Fun, fun, fun! That's how you describe swing choir. The swing choir once again helped do what the music department had lacked for many years. They made it fun for almost everybody involved. That's how it should be.

Miss Shafer, ending her third year at South Side, has almost completed what appears to be a complete overhaul of the swing choir. Although, there weren't enough guys in the choir, they kept on singing and dancing as if everything was just fine. Showing, of course, that if you have enough spirit, you can cover-up what the group lacks in numbers.

The swing choir made their preview this year during the winter concert. And, for once, the audience did not dread the arrival of the prestigious singing group with the added bonus of dancing. The swing choir performed two numbers that night and did them with a flare that surpassed anything done in the past on the stage of South Side High School. They sang "I've Got a Crush on You" by the Jets and "I'll Be Home for Christmas", a sweet reminder of the past for most adults.

In retrospect, one can honestly say that the swing choir is making music more of what it should be. Fun!

Green Machine Marches to Victory

South Side High School's "Marching Green Machine" took on a great challenge this year when they decided to have their show professionally written and combined with the nice, but difficult, music of George Gershwin. To get a head start, Mr. David Streeter, the marching band director, began rehearsing the music at the end of the year last school year. The constant practicing led to a dynamic result, which led the "Green Machine" to victory.

Field practice did not begin until the end of the summer at the annual band camp. As the show was professionally written, many new maneuvers and techniques were taught and learned by everyone.

Even though this caused a few minor setbacks, the resulting combination was outstanding. Mr. Streeter commented, "This year has been a challenge for everyone musically and drill-wise. We've done the best we could possibly do."

The drum majors were Derek Ball, Kathy Hostetter, and Julie Morris. Hostetter said, "I've had a lot of fun, and I think everyone should be commended for their excellent performance this year." Unfortunately, many of the loyal band members are graduating, but, with any luck, the "Green Machine" will travel on to the Hoosier Dome next year for the state title.

On Your Best Guard

This year, the fifteen member color guard showed a lot of dedication. Though the long hard hours of working were difficult, the guard was looking good. With a new professional instructor, they showed strong initiative. They learned several new routines.

Heidi Hyland, the guard captain remarked, "this year's guard showed a lot of ability, skill, and ambition." The desire to win, took them beyond almost all expectations at many contests. Francis Hughes, junior, commented, "Although the guard was behind in learning drill, there was a good attitude towards the guard from the band that inspired the guard greatly.

Archers Commended

Archers continually make progress in all areas; scholastics, athletics, and extracurricular activities. One day is set aside in the spring to honor and to recognize outstanding Archers. Mr. Weicker, administrators, teachers, and peers are given the opportunity to see students receive awards from all branches of our school's educational program. This day, recognition day, is a long standing tradition at South.

The first awards that were given out were for the Valdictorian and the Salutatorian. The awards went to Joseph Deitche and Timothy Sheppard, respectively.

The announcement of the South Side scholars followed. They were Joseph Deitche, Timothy Sheppard, Margaret Norton, Melanie Kratzman, Tamara Smith, Nga Thi Huynh, and Cynthia Ditslear.

Underclassmen were also honored. The R. Nelson Snider Award for the top junior and sophomore went to Theresa Henderson and Avonna Grill. The Principal's Award for the top freshman was awarded to Delana Neal. Kathy Hostetter and Mike Hollingsworth, juniors, received the Danforth Foundations "I Dare You Award!" and the Brown University Book Award and the Yale University Book Award went to Derek Ball and Craig Chambers, respectively.

In the athletic department's prestigious Blanket Award was presented to Cori Kelso and Doug Owens, the first student manager ever to win the award.

Many speech team members were also recognized. Craig Chambers, President to the speech team, received the Outstanding Speaker Award. Brian Bolton and Mike Rogers both were presented the Performing Arts trophy. Margaret Norton earned the Elizabeth Ann Bromly Award and, to finish off the evening, Holly Hunter received the Stage Struck Award.

Unlike many years of the past, the staff and student body seemed to be fully content with the presentation of the awards and the choice of who they went to. South experienced another year to be proud of as a page in it's long history book.

The Best of the ## Class of 1986

To be selected for membership in to the National Honors Society represents the culmination of a distinguished high school career. The National Honors Society has long been a part of South Side tradition and to be a member of this society is considered a great honor. All seniors selected to this group have every right to feel proud.

The selection process for the National Honors society begins each year with a teacher's nomination of seniors who exhibit strong ambition, scholastic leadership, character, and service. the students must also rank in the top third of the class. A committee of teachers and administrators then select the final members. Approximately fifteen percent of the senior class was selected for the honor last year.

We Could Not Have Done It Without You!!!

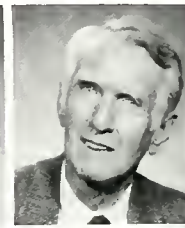

1986-87 was the year of teacher awareness. The teacher slowdown caused a community wide as well as school wide recognition of the plight of the teachers. From most students perspective teachers were just always there when they were needed. Before school, after school, on the teachers own time students were tutored, coached, and otherwise supervised. The generosity of the teachers was not appreciated or respected, but rather expected.

The slowdown, however, made students and parents realize how much teachers really do, especially South Side teachers. Almost all of South's clubs and activities are sponsored by teacher volunteers. Overall South's faculty has proven to be a dedicated group of professionals dedicated to the profession of caring.

South Side experienced a year nothing short of a "re-birth," in activities and clubs. We, as a school, re-stated a commitment to involvement and participation in extracurricular activities that had lain quietly dormant over the last few years. The introduction of new clubs, the quiet burial of old clubs, and the new support of existing clubs all were contributing factors to a year of success. Another factor to this year's success was the desire to be unusual and different. Many clubs and activities presented this opportunity. — Dan Carson

... On The Move

Officers in '87 Give South Side Class

Class officers contributed more to South Side this year than has been seen in a long time. The race was hard-fought, and when the final votes were tallied, a group of outstanding leaders emerged victorious but not before hard campaigning and two run-off elections.

The senior class, led by President Mike Mortensen, Vice-President Beth Felger, Secretary Candy Lockett, Treasurer Kelly Reynolds, and with Debby Thatcher, Sherry Petrik, and Kendra Washington as Social Committee, organized many traditional events, such as the Junior/Senior Prom and the Senior Banquet.

Boosting school spirit and the return of the MORP were a couple things achieved by the junior class this year.

They were headed by Aaron Lake as president, Vicki LaRue as vice-president, Melissa Livensparger as secretary, and John Fulkerson as treasurer, as well as social committee members Carla Buggs, Don Van Fossen, and Jason Stinson. The goal of the officers was to make sure that the class of '88 will indeed be really great.

The sophomores did their fair share of planning also. Although the sophomores aren't left with a whole lot to do after the juniors and seniors have planned all of their own activities they still managed to make their year worthwhile. The officers were president Amy Olsen, vice-president Marty Byro, secretary Heather Porter, treasurer Jenny Osterman, and on the social committee were Eric Buchenberger, Erin Kohne, and Christa Machmut.

The hardest-fought battle for the presidency occurred within the freshman class. The winner of the race was Dan Fulkerson. He was soon ushered into his new job of president with his fellow class officers Tim Burns as vice-president, Patricia Reichard serving as secretary, and Kristy Clark as treasurer. The freshman social committee was comprised of Tanya Evans, Mary Felger, and Mary Porter.

The year proved to be a success behind the leadership of our class officers, insuring that the future of student leaders will be secure in our school.

Student Council Bounces Back

What's productive, big, and no longer on the club extinction list? The South Side student council, of course. Yes, the student council rebuilt an image of having an organization that was able to get things done around our school and in our community. The 1986-87 school year was just another common example of Archers helping out others.

Homecoming, a spirit week, a new tutoring program, and many other things were on the council's list of things to do. All of which proved to be a success, except for the cancelation of the hayride in the fall, which was not the fault of the student council.

This year's student council's officers were, Craig Chambers, president; Dan Carson, vice-president; Kathy Hostetter, secretary; and Aaron Lake, treasurer.

Dancing Up a Homecoming Storm

If South's Homecoming loss to the Snider Panthers was disappointing, the dance that followed made up for it. The music, provided by Sounds One, was an interesting mix of all tastes.

The highlight of the dance was the crowning of King and Queen, as well as the naming of the court. Senior Candy Lockett was named queen, while Senior Tim Gaskill was elected king. The two senior couples on the court were Whitney Bish and Mike Hollingsworth, and Julie Morris and Jesse White. The junior honors were shared by John Key with Marie Beasley, and Vicki LaRue escorted by Terry Reese. Sophomore court members were Lavette Harris, Tom Gaskill, Amy Olsen, and Andy Hollingsworth. The freshmen included Mike Brateman, Kristie Clark, Dan Fulkerson, and Terra Wagner.

The overall success of the evening proved that with Archers, the sky's the limit.

Mr. Irresistable Steals Away Hearts

The second annual King of Hearts dance got the 1987 social season started with a bang. The dance, sponsored once again by Philo, a service organization comprised solely of Junior and Senior girls, did away with the traditional Queen and instead honored guys only. The King and court were escorted by the Philo officers.

The royal court was decided not by the traditional nomination and vote, but rather by a process known as Mr. Irresistable Day. Each Philo member was given three red hearts to wear throughout the course of the day. They were instructed not to talk to any guys except, of course, the ones they could not resist. Any guy who won over a Philo member was then considered to be irresistible and in a sense won that girl's heart. His name was written on the heart. At the end of the day the hearts were collected and the lucky guy with the most hearts bearing his name was elected Mr. Irresistable and the King of Hearts. His runners up were named the court.

The King this year was Shane Hollingsworth, while Steve Lubbehusen, Don VanFossen, John Key, and Austin Couch shared the honors of being on court.

Overall the dance was a great success, and thanks to Philo it will probably live to be another source of Archer Pride.

AFS, a service organization based on helping out foreign exchange students, got the year started with a bang and the momentum led to a very productive and fun filled year for the members. The year got underway with the traditional selling of Chicken Wires, and was then followed by an outstanding group effort in decorating the English hall for the hall decorating contest.

Throughout the year AFS not only offered its members the chance to become acquainted with South's foreign students, but also made getting to know one another better a little easier. The club took a trip to Chicago in the spring, which gave the exchange students a broader view of American life. All in all, AFS accomplished its ultimate goal — to insure that South Side did indeed shine, through cooperation and genuine caring.

Tutors Share Knowledge

One of the benefits of having had a superior education is that it becomes possible to share your knowledge with others. For most people that aspect of education comes later in life, but for a small group of students here at South the time had already arrived.

The tutors, led by Mr. Dan Boylan, was a group of Archers who expressed their interest in helping elementary school children in their various areas of need. These areas included math, reading, and some social studies. The tutors traveled to area elementary schools after their regular school day. A continuation of this program was, and is, eagerly being sought. All in all the tutors proved to be a dedicated group of students, and also a great help to future Archers.

Lost at South? Find a Guide!

They were easy to spot when you knew when to look for them. On Back-to-School Night, VIP Day, or during Higher Education week you were likely to find them around every corner, adults wandering aimlessly around the halls with no idea where they were going or where they had been, much less where they were. While they gazed absently at students in the halls they were looking for one thing, a senior in a green vest, a savior.

These saviors, more commonly known as tour guides, were a select group of seniors chosen to help out visitors to South by acting as map, compass, and more often than not, personal guide. The students were chosen based on their leadership ability, as well as their willingness to participate. Throughout the year the tour guides helped make South more comfortable and familiar to all those who called South their home away from home.

Business Clubs Explore the "Real World"

South is the school of opportunities, and that was evident in the presence of two opportunities for students to find out what really went on in the business world, the OEA and DECA clubs.

Sponsored once again by Mrs. Irving, BOS (Business Office Service) class and the OEA (Office Education Service) club made up an interesting business course. The club basically enforced what happened in this course and recognised the outstanding people in it. The class, Basic Office Service, earlier called COE (Cooperative Office Education), gave students a job that best used their abilities and tried to teach the students the responsibilities and requirements of a real job.

The club tried to give some additional support to business students and recognize their employers. The officers who ran the club this year were: President Sherry Petrik, Vice-President Tammy Moore, Secretary Rayneila Carter, Treasurer Brenda Lunde, Reporter/Historian Tammy Fedock and Parliamentarian Charlotte Jones. These officers organized a New Year's Open House for the BOS students and their "training sponsors", or employers, as well as a banquet in April for them.

DECA (Distributive Education Association) has very much the same structure as OEA. During the day students reported to a class of Advanced Marketing and management of related information. The class taught the Archers students all they need to know about the "real" world, from subjects of shoplifting and how to prevent it to the correct way to set up a display.

Mr. Hullinger, who has headed the club since 1968, joined the club officers in writing manuals and making advertisements. In fact, DECA originated the idea of the "design an ad" contest.

DECA also has run South's bookstore to fund all of the activities that it supports. DECA tried to teach marketing, a skill that many believe will be more important in the coming years, while OEA emphasized other aspects of the "real" world.

Wrestlerettes Offer Support

'86-'87 was the year of school spirit, of Archer pride, and it was the year of new clubs. One such newcomer was the Wrestlerettes, which was a rejuvenation of the Mat Maids of many years ago.

The Wrestlerettes were a support group for the wrestling team, an idea brought back to South after a few years' break by Seniors Laurie Knittle and Michelle Porter and sponsored by Coach Barry Ehle. Other Wrestlerettes included seniors Beth Felger, Becky Hewett and Debby Thatcher, juniors Debbie Cook, Jackie Baney and Andrea Muirragui, and freshmen Jennifer Stewart, Mary Porter and Mary Felger. At home meets they offered oranges to all wrestlers and traveled to away meets to cheer on the Archer squad, as well as to offer individual support to the wrestlers.

Their projects ranged from Santa-grams and Times greetings wishing the wrestlers good luck to balloons for each wrestler on the first day of the SAC tournament. Overall the Wrestlerettes proved to be not only a great support to the wrestlers, but also hopefully the beginning of a new South Side tradition.

The Year of Hospitality

1986 marked the charter year for 'The Archer Hospitality Crew.' About twenty students made up South Side's first Welcome Wagon service.

Sponsored by Mrs. Jean Lorraine and Mrs. Frances Gooden, the club was conceived not only to welcome new students, but also to help them in their difficult transition from another school. The new students were given tours of the building as well as introduced to students and faculty in an effort to help them go about the hard task of finding friends a little easier.

Each week the names of new students were announced over the PA system in an effort to acquaint the student-body with the newcomers. One major project planned by the Hospitality Crew was Hospitality Day. Nearly ninety new students were greeted before school and given a name tag along with a South Side information packet. After school, a reception was held where the new arrivals were given personal welcomes from the faculty.

Through extensive efforts, the Archer Hospitality Crew had an outstanding first year.

S.A.D.D. Fights Another Year to Stop Kids From Drinking and Driving

"... And don't forget the meeting Wednesday morning in the Greeley Room," was a statement heard by almost every Archer this year. It signified the ... you guessed it ... the S.A.D.D. meeting. S.A.D.D., Students Against Driving Drunk, met faithfully every week to discuss both past and future plans, anticipation flowing along with new ideas. The meetings were attended by an average of 30-40 students who were helping to fight a leading cause of death among fellow teens. Along with Kathy Hostetter as president, Amy Level as vice-president, Ed Kump as secretary, Frances Hughes as treasurer, and sponsors Mr. Hedges and Mrs. Sollenberger, the members helped form one of the strongest clubs at South.

S.A.D.D. was and is active in many ways to help alert people of the problem of drunken driving. They travelled to various middle schools to put on skits for the students and took an active part in Operation Prom/Graduation to help keep the streets safe during a busy time for high school students.

S.A.D.D. has a goal. This goal is to minimize drunken driving. In order to achieve this, S.A.D.D. strives for a greater amount of caring students who want to see this deadly problem reduced. Drunken driving may never be completely stopped, but in 1987 S.A.D.D. certainly tried their hand at doing so. This is a group to be proud of.

Project Leads to Bright Future

It's 7:00 on Friday morning. Only twelve and a half hours until the Archers take to the field or court, and instead of lying in bed resting up for the game, a dedicated bunch of students are already at school discussing ways to help not only South Side but also the community.

Sponsored by Mrs. Zalas, Project Lead is certainly out of the ordinary. For one thing, there are no elected officers. Everyone has the same potential, it's just a matter of how one uses it. Project Lead-ers use it well. Their activities ranged from decorating a senior citizens home to helping incoming freshmen become acquainted with South (and that, of course led to their enterprising sideline — selling elevator passes). In all seriousness, Project Lead was not only productive but also a lot of fun.

Philo Worked for the Community

The end of school marked yet another great year for Philo, a service group composed of junior and senior girls. Led by President Debby Thatcher, Vice-President Sandy Green, Secretary Laurie Knittle, Treasurer Carrie Bell, and Michelle Porter and Lisa Heredia as program chairperson and junior representative, respectively, as well as sponsor Mrs. Joan Varketta, Philo organized many activities to help South Side, as well as the community.

Philo sponsored both the Powder Puff football game and the King of Hearts dance, not to mention being secret pals to teachers and office personnel. They also cleaned up the prop room after the senior play. Philo managed to do an incredible amount of work for our benefit and had fun doing it.

Powder Puff Game Ends in Tie

The undefeated juniors teamed up with this year's freshmen to take on the huge team of sophomores and seniors in Philo's annual Powder Puff football game.

The sophomore-senior team, led with touchdowns from Lynette and Lavette Harris, sophomores, held off the fiesty frosh-junior team for a 14-14 tie after overtime. The frosh-junior team, plagued by penalties, fought hard with touchdowns from Katrina Merriweather, and Marie Beasley, juniors. In the interest of time the game was called a tie after one overtime.

Things Are Looking Up!

The Afro-American Club, guided by Mrs. Davis' superior knowledge of black history, represented the interest of the student body to learn more about black culture. Developed to teach black history, it was one of the largest clubs in the school. The members not only learned about black culture, but also displayed a part of that culture each year in "The Soul Revue." The popularity of the club has grown every year, and it is the continuing hope of club sponsor Mrs. Davis and club president LaDonna Wattley that the Afro-American Club will continue to attract the kind of students that not only display an interest in black culture but also become a part of it through the club's activities. Other club officers were Vice-President Wayman Lindsay, Secretary Carla Buggs, and Treasurer Charlie Reese Jr.

Getting on in Years

"Vivit Lingua Latina" — Live the language of Latin. Who says Latin is a dead language? The members of this lively club obviously thought not. The Latin Club or Junior Classical League is the oldest club at South Side High School. Miss Lois Holtmeyer, the sponsor of the club and also the Latin teacher, and the members were very proud of this fact and were making sure the club got even older.

The officers for the 86-87 year were Beth Felger, president; Justin Lebamoff, vice-president; Brenda "Buffy" Newton, secretary; and Matt Elliott as treasurer. These officers did the fine job of making sure there was a club meeting held each month with a lot of festive activities planned. Such activities included a fall picnic, a Halloween meeting, a mock Roman wedding, a Roman banquet, and a noble collection to raise money for food and supplies to present to a needy family.

The French Club, one of the more popular of the language clubs, had a great year. It began with a meeting to help those who were new to the club to feel a part of it and for the old members to get "reacquainted" with each other. As the year progressed, the club participated in many activities which followed the same line as in previous years.

French Club offered a comfortable atmosphere where people could in general, just have a good time. President Kathy Hostetter, Vice-President Jim Catlin, Secretary Jennie Hawfield, Treasurer Tim Jones, and club sponsor Mrs. Wynn played very important roles in the success of the club. Junior Anne Rogers, when asked her opinion of the club, commented, "This is my second year in the club. I had lots of fun. It offers the opportunity to meet a lot of new people."

German Club Finds New Sponsor

The German Club experienced a true taste of German culture this year with the introduction of a new sponsor, Mrs. Mary Ann Klaffke, a native of Germany. Led by President Dawn Kolkman, Vice-President Adrienne Blessing, and Sarah Spears and Kim Oglesbee as secretary and treasurer, respectively, the club sponsored a German potluck dinner, as well as a scavenger hunt and cross country skiing. Most of all, the club got to escape Fort Wayne for a little while and get a taste of Deutschland.

After a year's absence, the Spanish Club has bounced back stronger than ever this year. With over 60 members, it was the largest of the language clubs. This year's officers were President Austin Couch, Vice-President Vicki LaRue, Secretary Whitney Bish, and Ecuadorian exchange student Treasurer, Genoveva Malo. The Spanish Club's sponsors were Mrs. Rollins and Mrs. Johnson.

The club meetings included a scavenger hunt and a Spanish costume contest, as well as some Ecuadorian culture from Genoveva and seasonal fiestas. All in all, Spanish Club had a fantastic return performance, and the future promises to provide encore after encore.

First Season's Nearly Letter Perfect!

The Lettermen's club is not an original idea. The rebirth of the once extinct club is an original idea. In fact, it's an excellent idea.

In 1986 Mark Bailey and Sam Young got together and discussed the possibility of bringing the club back to life and creating a feeling of spirit within the school. With the help of Mr. Pres Brown and coach John Hester they put their ideas into action. The overwhelming response to the Lettermen's club in it's early stages helped it to size up with the largest of clubs already in existence at South Side.

In 1987 the Lettermen's club had the distinction of being one of the largest clubs at South Side. Under the supervision of coach Barry Ehle, one of South's new teachers, the club moved into action. The blood drive, the Lettermen's club dance, and a lot of community help projects effectively kept the club busy throughout their first full year of activity.

The only thing you needed to be in the Lettermen's club was either an athletic, speech, or music department letter. These letters served as passports to a fun and fulfilling time. This year's officers were Sam Young, as president, Mark Bailey, as vice-president, Jenny Osterman, secretary, and Charlie Reese, as treasurer.

Rifle Club Shoots Year Away

During the 1986-87 school year the rifle club, which has been at South for over forty years, continued with great spirit. The club was directed by Mr. Hullinger, who supervised senior Chris Ladner, as President, Becky Hewett, senior, as Vice-president, Pat Leamon as reporter, and Mike McGuire as Secretary/Treasurer. The rifle club's two teams competed both locally and statewide under the National Rifle Association's rules in a total of eight matches.

"The team's got great potential", said Mr. Hullinger. The team this year included many of last year's members but also found a few new marksmen. Soren Ringgaard, senior, was one of the most promising new members according to Mr. Hullinger. This exchange student has been shooting since he was a boy just because "I love to shoot". He is not used to shooting 22 caliber rifles, though. When he was a kid, he used to shoot a military rifle.

This year there were also a few freshmen who joined the team and freshmen John Kimble joined because "I enjoy shooting rifles (but not at people)". In fact, safety is one of the most important aspects of the rifle club.

Coach Hullinger stresses the use of safety equipment and doesn't allow any crazy shooting. At one practice he told a person to tighten their shoulder strap; "If you don't follow the rules you'll be disqualified from the match.", he said.

The rules, set by the National Rifle Association, are that the marksmen try to hit a bullseye with a two millimeter diameter which is fifty feet away. That is about the thickness of a quarter and a dime shot at from two and a half classrooms away. Scores are given out of one hundred. At South Side there are two teams of seven people.

Speaking of

"Character" is a good lead in word to describe one of South Side's winningest teams. They don't throw a ball, or kick one for that matter. They don't carry bats or tennis raquets. They just carry words. They are the South Side Speech team and as a whole they posse an enduring character.

The speech team this year did what it has always done since its original conception over fifty years ago, it's won. This year's team had over fifty members who competed in various speech events ranging from radio to extemporaneous speaking, all of which provided some sort of excitement for each individual member of the team. Craig Chambers, president of the speech team said, "You get to work with a lot of interesting and fun people and you also get to learn skills that will help you even after you have graduated from high school."

Dedication . . .

We all know that behind every great team there is a great coach and in the speech team's case, Mr. Robert Kelly served as that catapult to perfecting one's talents. During school and during the early hours of the morning before the 8:00a.m. bell was when anybody could find Mr. Kelly working with students to ensure that South Side would achieve another victory over the weekend. This scene was repeated throughout almost the whole year, from September to April, which is the length of the speech season. This scene depicted the dedication that it took to run and serve on one of the state's leading powers in speech, a power that has dominated years past and will continue to dominate the years yet to come.

This year's speech team officers were Craig Chambers, president, Jesse Martin, vice-president, and Mark Bailey, secretary.

It was Definitely a Year of Working Together

The 1986-87 school year saw the beginning of many changes at South Side. There was an increase in discipline, more rules more strictly enforced. There was an increase in time spent in the classroom, with less field trips and during the day programs. More time, however was spent after school and before school in extracurricular activities. There was a noticeable increase in school spirit; and hopefully when the year ended we knew a little more than we did in September.

Much of the motivation for the increase in school pride came from within the school, from the people in the background. The administration and staff at South have been instrumental in promoting interest in the school. The custodial and lunchroom staffs helped make school seem a little more like home. The administrators, along with the counselors and secretaries helped keep our educational process running smoothly. Together they made the community as well as us as students aware of the true meaning of South Side Pride.

This is our family! In 1987, South Side came together for the first time since the '50s. Students were working with each other to make South the bright spot of Fort Wayne. For better or for worse, the students and faculty of South Side made changes that helped remold the face of South. Heightened by a renewed sense of achievement, Archers stormed floors after games and crowded into the gym for pep-sessions. '87 was a special year. The beginning of a renaissance period and the end to the apathy age made 1987 stupendous. For years to come, people will remember 1987. — Jesse Martin

Seniors: Memories to Last for a Lifetime

Only four short years ago, the cry was, "Give us graduation!" Now, as we end our senior year, many are starting to say, "Oh, if we only had a little more time."

Our senior year has left us almost as quickly as it arrived. What made it such a special year? Of course, there was the continuation of several unique traditions, such as Ivy Day, the senior play, and the hour-long. These were all a part of our senior year and will not soon be forgotten.

But what really made the year special had to do with the development of relationships and friendships. As seniors, we were able to create new friendships, but more importantly, we were able to strengthen old ones. It was these friendships that made our senior year a time to remember.

Although it was sometimes the wish of many to hold on to our senior year just a little longer, it was time to move on. The thought of life after graduation was at the same time both scary and exciting. We were comforted by the fact that our experiences at South Side High School over the last four years had left us well prepared.

What lay in the future was uncertain. But what was certain was that we would always have the memories of our high school years — memories to be cherished for a lifetime.

The class of '88, juniors in '87, had its share of characters and good times. Like most classes to graduate from South Side, the class of '88 spent their time having the time of their lives and not worrying about the future.

The juniors did things with flare and, to say the least, uniqueness. Mixing academics and a wide range of clubs, the juniors stood out as a class of its own. Left of center was the only way to describe the cheer-block and spirit buttons that circulated in '86-'87. The junior class officers also seemed to epitomize the juniors in the way they contributed to prom preparations and other officer activities during the course of the year.

With a taste for the eccentric, the juniors of 1987 promised to be a welcome addition to the venerated alumni of South Side.

Sophs Take on New Responsibilities

As the second year aof our high school careers came to rapid ends, the sophomores matured in many ways.

As freshmen, many of us thought some of the South Side traditions to be ridiculous, but as sophomores we learned to be more appreciative of the things. This lead to our having more pride in our school and in ourselves. Outside of school, we took on new responsibilities, such as after-school jobs, drivers licenses, and extended dating privileges, which broadened our horizons.

Now, as we look toward the future, we look forward to experiencing many new thing that life has yet to offer us. We hope that as we press onward to our junior year in high school, we can accomplish the goals we have set for ourselves. — by DaLana Neal

Class of '90 Has High Hopes

Tis' another freshman class that joined South Side this year. Could this be the class that the teachers prayed to themselves as being the most intelligent and courteous class ever? Ah ... No.

This class still had a great number of people who were willing to contribute their time helping South out by joining clubs and other activities for their class.

Being a freshman was not easy, of course. The word that symbolized the freshman class was survival. Even though the upperclassmen did help them out on occasion, they still gave them phony directions and other unnecessary problems that the freshmen traditionally faced.

Indeed the freshmen were nervous about coming to South, but as they became acquainted with their surroundings they adjusted to the new environment.

The freshman football team, cheerleaders, and basketball teams contributed their time and increased their skills and agility to improve South's records. Their talent was also expressed and will greatly contribute to the years to come.

This year was a good one for the class of 1990. Let's hope that the class of 1991 will be just as good.

Chambers Reforms Paper and Attitudes

Since the need for a change on the Times beckoned, Senior Craig Chambers, editor-in-chief, answered to the calling. Among many, one of the changes on South Side's weekly newspaper, the Times, was a new name plate.

Trying to fit headlines, cartoons, photos, stories, and ads on to a page was a task for editors. This task was known as "paste-up." Paste-ups were on Tuesdays, sometimes until late in the evening. "What about dinner?" you wonder. Dinner (or snack) was obtained from the ritual McDonalds run.

With deadlines to meet the editors and staff were busy assigning, reminding, writing, typing, proofing, and hurrying to get the stories to the printers on time to be able to be delivered on Fridays. This all was under the supervision of Mr. Douglas Laslie.

The '86-'87 staff included Craig Chambers, senior, editor-in-chief; Julie Morris, senior, managing editor; Mike Morissey, junior, news editor; Matt Elliott, junior, and Kathy Hostetter, senior, opinion editors; Sandy Green, Whitney Bish, and Beth Felger, seniors, feature editors; John Fulkerson, junior, and Buffy Newton, sophomore, sports editors; Michelle Porter, senior, business manager; Derek Ball, senior, and Nick Manco, junior, cartoonists; and lastly, the title of photography coordinator went to junior Don VanFossen. All in all, the Times enjoyed the changes of the year.

... And so Ends the Season of the Larry!

Another year has past and the memories we hold will become dimmer and dimmer, and the faces we were familiar to and the names once known will become forgotten as time advances. The purpose of a yearbook is to capture and brighten those memories, and to reacquaint strangers that were once friends. The Totem of '86-'87 has done it again by enclosing between covers, pages and pages of the good times throughout the year.

Senior Jesse Martin, editor-in-chief, and senior Dan Carson, assistant editor, took on the duty of organizing and completing ideas with the theme of

Putting together a yearbook wasn't easy. A lot of time, patience, and hard work was put into it. This year was the first year the Totem used computers in putting the yearbook together, which didn't make meeting deadlines any easier.

The Totem hopes they have caught a few events that someday will spark your memories back to the "happiest years of our lives."

The infamous "tunnels" are another feature that make South Side special. / photo by Carson and Martin Seniors Barb Hooper, Stephanie Munson and Carrie Bell spent most of their time at South together.

Abnormality is the essence of all that is pleasing. Left of Center is the essence of South Side. The heart of its greatness is its individuality. Ever see an interesting Twin-kie? Of course not, they are all the same. Any McDonald's hamburger taste better than the next one? When life becomes expected in every aspect, it becomes routine. When school becomes many things, but never "common." Students have been growing and learning for sixty-five years and 1987 was the year for learning of the potential of youth and youth's influence on the rest of the world.
